1. PREAMBLE

1.1. Introduction to the Code of Ethics

This document forms an integral part of the Organization, Management and Control Model adopted by the Company pursuant to Legislative Decree 231/2001. The Model, indeed, presupposes compliance with it as an element underlying the prevention protocols, forming with the same a body of internal rules aimed at spreading corporate ethics and transparency.

The code contains a set of ethical principles and rules of conduct the compliance with which is considered essential for the proper functioning, management reliability and reputation of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A.

The adoption of the Code of Ethics aims at meeting the needs and expectations of all interlocutors of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. (suppliers, subcontractors, customers, partners, etc.), in order to constitute a transparent reality oriented towards respect for the law and the best ethical and behavioral standards.

The Code is also a governance tool and, as such, forms an integral part of the Company's Internal Control and Risk Management System.

The breach of any of the provisions of the Code of Ethics may result in the application of a disciplinary sanction for employees, graded according to the seriousness of the breach, in compliance with the current regulations on this matter.

Toscana Aeroporti endeavors to ensure that its economic/financial performance is such as to safeguard and increase the corporate value, in order to adequately remunerate the risk that shareholders take on when investing their capital. The Company considers that compliance with the principles of conduct aimed at ensuring the integrity of the share capital, the protection of creditors and third parties, the regular performance of the market, the exercise of the functions of the public supervisory authorities and transparency and fairness are ethically key elements of the activity carried out from an economic and financial point of view.

1.2. Core values and goals of the Code of Ethics

The Code of Ethics lists the reference values that must guide the behaviour of all recipients of this document. These values are mainly the following:

- moral integrity, personal honesty and fairness in internal and external relations;
- transparency towards all related stakeholders;
- social commitment;
- the protection of health, safety and the environment;

and, more generally,

- the refusal of any conduct which, although aimed at achieving a result consistent with the purpose of the Company, presents aspects that are not compatible with the law and the rules of conduct in force within the Company.

The Code has the following functions:

- preventive function: the codification of the reference ethical principles and the basic rules of conduct, with which all stakeholders must comply, constitutes the express statement of the serious and effective commitment of the Company to guarantee the lawfulness of its business activity, with particular reference to crime prevention;
- cognitive function: the Code, through the enunciation of abstract and general principles and rules of conduct, allows recognizing unethical behaviours and indicating the correct methods of exercising the functions and powers attributed to each individual;
- legitimating function: the Code expresses the Company's duties and responsibilities towards the stakeholders, so that the latter can find in the Code the acknowledgement of their expectations;

- incentivizing function: the Code, by imposing compliance with the rules and principles contained therein, contributes to the development of ethical awareness and strengthens the Company's reputation and the trust relationship with the stakeholders.

The aim of this Code is to stress the commitment to act according to ethics in the context of relations with the various internal and external corporate interlocutors.

Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. identifies a minimum standard of ethical conduct aimed – amongst other things – at encouraging behaviours suitable to prevent the offences provided for by Legislative Decree 231/2001 as amended and supplemented, relating to the regulation of the administrative liability of entities.

1.3. Recipients

The principles and contents of this Code of Ethics must inspire the activity of all those who work within the Company, taking into account the importance of the roles and responsibilities entrusted to them for the pursuit of the Company's purpose. In particular, these principles and provisions are intended for the following persons (hereinafter also referred to as "Internal Recipients" or "Recipients"):

- the members of the Company's corporate bodies (Board of Directors, Shareholders' Meeting, Board of Statutory Auditors and all other Control Bodies);
- TA's employees (directors, managers and employees);
- external collaborators who perform, directly or indirectly, services related to the corporate activity (consultants, external professionals, representatives, intermediaries, etc.);
- contractual partners in business relationships and all those who have commercial relations with the Company.

1.4. Scope

The Company informs all Recipients of the provisions and the application of the Code of Ethics, recommending compliance with it.

In this context, the Company undertakes to:

- favour the maximum dissemination of the Code of Ethics to the Recipients;
- ensure constant updating of the Code to any changes in the Company's needs and the current regulations;

- carry out all the necessary checks on any reports of possible breaches, applying, in the event of ascertainment of the same, adequate sanctions;
- ensure that no one can suffer any retaliation for reporting possible breaches of the Code of Ethics in good faith, always guaranteeing the right to privacy of the reporting party.

1.5. Employees' and collaborators' obligations

The Code of Ethics forms an integral part of the employment relationship. Compliance with the rules of the Code must be considered an essential part of the obligations of the Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. personnel.

Furthermore, for collaborators and third parties, compliance with the Code of Ethics is an essential prerequisite for establishing and/or continuing the professional/collaborative relationship with the Company.

Every employee or collaborator must:

- refrain from behaving contrary to the provisions of the Code;
- report to the Supervisory Body any information relating to breaches of the Code within the framework of the Company's business activity;
- collaborate in verifying breaches with the internal control structures responsible therefor;
- refrain from taking any initiatives contrary to the contents of the Code.

As to any third parties that come into contact with TA, every employee or collaborator must:

- duly inform them of the provisions of this Code;
- require compliance with the provisions of this Code in carrying out the activities for which they maintain relationships with the Company and have these provisions enforced also by their assignees and contractors;
- take any measures provided for herein in case of third-party non-fulfillment of the obligation to comply with the provisions contained in this Code.

2. GENERAL VALUES AND PRINCIPLES

The competitiveness of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. is closely related to the efficiency of the people and the means that, being integrated with one another, are suitable in order to effectively achieve the corporate purposes.

The primary objective of the Company and its managers is to propose and implement projects, actions and investments aimed at preserving and increasing the Company's assets, without sacrificing the specificity of each individual contribution.

To this end, the Company has identified, in the Code of Ethics, its own ethical reference principles guiding all its decisions and activities. These principles, which are listed below, are the key values which all Recipients must comply with in carrying out the corporate activities.

Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A., therefore, requires directors, managers and all its employees and collaborators to always comply with a strict behavioural ethics with customers, suppliers, colleagues, collaborators and in representing the Company before third parties and the Public Administration, since the successfulness of the business activity depends on the ability to maintain the trust placed in the Company by these essential stakeholders.

On the other hand, all persons that interact in any capacity with the Company – in addition to the specific obligations deriving from ethics and/or their roles – must behave and have their collaborators and interlocutors behave with absolute honesty, loyalty, good faith, moderation, fairness and diligence, collaboration and transparency.

In no case shall the belief to be acting for the benefit of themselves or of the Company justify any conducts in contrast with the principles of this Code of Ethics.

2.1. Compliance with the rules and regulations

Compliance with the laws, regulations and all current regulatory provisions is a key principle for the Company.

Recipients, within their respective competences, are therefore required to consistently know and comply with any laws, regulations and rules in force in the country in which the Company operates.

Internal Recipients must also be aware of and comply with the corporate procedures including but not limited to those expressly provided for in the Organization, Management and Control Model adopted by the Company.

In the event of any doubt or need for further information, in relation to the strict compliance with and the interpretation of the provisions of the Code of Ethics, the Company's employees and collaborators shall contact their immediate supervisor, as well as the Supervisory Body pursuant to Legislative Decree 231/01, expressly appointed by the Company (odv231@toscan-aeroporti.com).

Furthermore, anyone who becomes aware of the commission of acts or conducts contrary to the laws and regulations in force must immediately notify the Supervisory Body and the CEO by sending a specific report, through the IT tool implemented by the Company, according to the provisions of § 8.3 “Reporting of violations and protection for the reporting parties”.

Furthermore, the Company will not initiate or pursue any relationship with anyone who is unwilling to comply with these principles.

2.2. Confidentiality and Privacy

The Company guarantees, in accordance with the provisions of the law, the confidentiality of the information in its possession, even of a personal or private nature, of which the Company has in any case become aware of in carrying out its business.

Moreover, the Company undertakes to:

- protect the privacy of the Company’s employees, in accordance with the applicable regulations on this subject, by refraining from revealing or disclosing – without prejudice to any law obligations – their personal data without the prior consent of the data subjects;
- acquire, process and store the personal data of the Company’s employees in full compliance with the privacy protection regulations;
- ensure the confidentiality of all the information in the Company’s possession, while refraining from searching and using confidential data and always ensuring compliance with the current privacy regulations and the corporate procedures.

Confidential information include, merely by way of example:

- any business, strategic, economic/financial, accounting, commercial, management, operational plans;
- any projects, investments, calls for bids and anything else that is not in the public domain under the law;
- data relating to employees, customers, suppliers, users or otherwise all personal data defined by Regulation (EU) 679/2016 (GDPR) and by Legislative Decree No. 196/2003 as amended and supplemented, with special attention to sensitive data under the law;
- the company performance and productivity parameters;

- any corporate agreements, commercial agreements and contracts, corporate documents;
- know-how relating to the production, development and marketing of services;
- any databases such as suppliers, customers, employees, brokers and external collaborators;
- any budget estimates and final accounting data, until they are disclosed to the public (in this case the information is also inside information).

All Recipients of this Code of Ethics are prohibited from using confidential information for purposes unrelated to the carrying out of their professional activity.

Any information, data, knowledge acquired, processed and managed by the Recipients during their activity must remain strictly confidential and duly protected and cannot be used, communicated or disclosed, either within or outside the Company, unless this occurs in compliance with the Company's regulations and procedures.

Anyone who becomes aware of confidential information for business-related reasons:

- must refrain from disclosing it to third parties, except for business-related reasons and with the authorization of their managers;
- if any private or confidential information is to be disclosed to third parties as a result of legislative or regulatory provisions, they must expressly declare the confidentiality of the information disclosed and the confidentiality obligation to be complied with by the third party too.

In particular, employees must:

- keep confidential the data and information learned during their activities which are not subject to transparency, in accordance with the applicable law and regulations;
- comply with the confidentiality obligation even after completing the service;
- consult only the documents they are authorized to access, using them in accordance with their tasks and ensuring that such documents are accessed only by those who are entitled thereto and in compliance with the instructions given;
- prevent any possible data loss by complying with the safety measures, keeping the entrusted documents in an orderly way and with care and avoiding making unnecessary copies;

- acquire and process the data only within specific procedures and store and archive the data in such a way that other unauthorized persons are prevented from becoming aware of them;
- represent and order the data in such a way that any person authorized to access such data can easily gain an understanding thereof in the most precise, exhaustive and truthful manner possible;
- disclose the data in the context of specific procedures or with the express authorization of the internal data processors and otherwise only after verifying the disclosability of such data and any possible absolute or relative constraints concerning third parties connected to the Company by any kind of relationship and, where appropriate, after obtaining their consent.

Recipients cannot carry out operations – including through a third party – in their own interest or in the interest of any third parties, by making use of private or confidential information, nor advise any third parties to carry out operations on the basis of such information.

Any deeds and documents pertaining to the Company or in the Company's possession which contain private or confidential information can be taken outside the Company's premises only for reasons related to the performance of the Company's business.

2.3. Fairness, honesty and legality

The Company operates in compliance with any applicable laws, professional ethics and internal regulations. The pursuit of the Company's interest can never justify a conduct contrary to the principles of fairness and honesty of conduct, or any conduct contrary to the laws and regulations in force.

The behaviours and relationships of all those who operate in the interest of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. in any capacity – either within or outside the Company – must be inspired by the principles of transparency, fairness and mutual respect.

Therefore, situations whereby Recipients can take unfair advantage of and/or benefit from opportunities met during and due to the conduct of their activities are to be avoided.

In particular, it is forbidden to accept any form of benefit or gift, either received or offered, which can be regarded as a tool aimed at influencing the free will and the conduct of the parties involved.

2.4. No discrimination

In the relationships with all counterparties, the Company avoids any discrimination based on the age, racial and ethnic origin, nationality, political and trade-union views, gender, sexual orientation, health status, philosophical or religious beliefs of the Company's interlocutors.

2.5. Impartiality

Recipients must act with impartiality and make decisions with rigour and transparency in carrying out all corporate procedures. They must also reject any unfair influence in carrying out their activity. In the event of any unfair influence, flattery or requests for favours concerning their own or others' work or if they receive proposals that tend to elude the impartiality obligation, they must inform the Supervisory Body without delay.

2.6. Professionalism and development of human resources

The Company guarantees an adequate degree of professionalism in carrying out the tasks assigned to the Company's employees and collaborators.

2.7. Conflicts of interest

All Recipients are required to operate fairly and impartially, avoiding any conflict of interest, be it actual or potential. Recipients must therefore avoid any situation of conflict of interest that could affect their free will and discretionality and which is incompatible with their duties.

The Company acknowledges and respects the right of the Company's management and employees to participate in investments, business or other activities outside the activity carried out in the interest of the Company, provided that these are activities permitted by law and compatible with the obligations taken on towards the Company.

A "conflict of interest", in addition to the cases provided for by the law, shall also include the case where an employee, a collaborator or a member of the corporate bodies pursues a personal objective other than that of the Company. Therefore, the management and employees are not only required to avoid any situations of conflict of interest, but also to report the existence of a conflict of interest between personal and family economic activities and the tasks performed within the Company.

The Company allows professional relationships between employees; however, in order to avoid conflicts of interest, romantic relationships (spouses, partners, boyfriends) should be avoided in the event of situations of subordination. The same rule applies in cases where the relationships between employees may involve a risk of fraud, including but not limited to, in the event that control, confirmation or continuity of a process is required (e.g., the order request activity and subsequent payments).

In particular, any employee, collaborator or member of the corporate bodies must report any specific situations and activities in which they or – as far as they know – their relatives or in-laws (up to the second degree) or de facto cohabitants, hold any economic and financial interests within the framework of suppliers, customers, competitors, contracting third parties or any related parent or subsidiary companies, or hold corporate direction or control positions or managerial roles.

In order to concretize the pursuit of this principle, Toscana Aeroporti has provided the following obligations:

- avoid acts or relationships with any parties Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. has ongoing contractual relationships with;
- respect the internal laws and regulations of the Company in all personal and business relationships outside the Company;
- avoid any acts or relationships that could be or appear to be in conflict with the obligations deriving from each function of the Company or with the interest of the Company;
- assess the pros and cons for the Company prior to accepting any assignment in another company;
- make impartial decisions in the best interests of the Company and in full compliance with the principles and contents of this Code of Ethics.

Any conflicts of interest, even if only potential, between shareholders, employees, directors, collaborators and the Public Administration are prevented and managed at the time of assignment of the task and upon starting the employment relationship by requesting them to sign a special declaration. The individuals concerned thereby undertake to avoid situations such as conflicts of interest in the relationships with the representatives of the Public Administrations and, if these occur, to promptly inform the Supervisory Body (Annex 1).

Conflicts of interest typically include, even if on a potential basis, by way of mere example:

- the case where an interest other than the Company's mission is pursued;
- carrying out activities that may interfere with the ability to make decisions in the exclusive interest of the Company;
- carrying out activities whereby personal advantage can be obtained from opportunities related to the Company's business activity; and, more specifically:

- the employee's profit sharing – either public or concealed – in any activities carried out by suppliers, customers and competitors;
- the exploitation of the employee's functional position for the pursue of interests that conflict with those of the Company;

- the use of information acquired in carrying out work activities for the employee's own benefit or for the benefit of third parties and, in any case, not in line with the interest of the Company.

Any employee of Toscana Aeroporti must immediately report any situation (be it actual or potential) that constitutes or generates a conflict of interest to their immediate supervisors or to the Supervisory Body.

In particular, employees must notify the Company in writing of any stable work relationship with another company or of any financial, commercial, professional, family or friendly relationship or activity susceptible of influencing the impartiality of their conducts.

2.8. Corruption prevention

The Company guarantees the adoption of measures to prevent the occurrence of corruption events, as well as the bad management of public interest activities Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. is responsible for.

Employees are required to comply with the internal regulations and measures necessary for crime prevention, in particular by abiding by the provisions contained in the Organization, Management and Control Model pursuant to Legislative Decree 231/2001.

More specifically, Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. does not allow:

- offering, promising, giving, paying, authorizing or instigating someone to give or pay, directly or indirectly, an economic advantage or any other benefit to a Public Official or a private individual (corruption);
- accepting requests or solicitations from, or authorizing or instigating someone to accept or solicit, directly or indirectly, an economic advantage or any other benefit from a Public Official or a private individual (bribery); in order to:

- induce any Public Official or private individual to perform any public task or any activity associated with a business activity in an improper manner or reward them for doing so;
- influence an official act (or omission) by a Public Official or any decision in breach of an official duty;
- obtain, secure or maintain a business activity or an unfair advantage in relation to corporate activities;
- otherwise, violate any applicable laws.

2.9. Incitement to corruption

By forbidding any form of corruption, the Company believes that it is fundamental and essential for the relationships with private individuals (suppliers, customers, consultants, contractual partners, etc.) to be based on the utmost fairness and transparency. To this end, Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A. ensures that Recipients do not suffer or commit private corruption. Therefore, Recipients must not breach the obligations and duties inherent in their tasks in order to receive (or because they have already received) promises of money or benefits and/or various advantages. It is expressly forbidden to receive any benefit and advantage or even to accept any promise thereof, regardless of the violation of one's duties.

In carrying out negotiations, Recipients must not only pursue the best advantage for the Company, forgetting their personal interest, but shall not accept any type of promise of personal benefit (money, goods, services, future employment, various advantages, etc.) from any bidders or be influenced by such promises in their decision-making processes.

2.10. Transparency and completeness of information

The information that is disclosed by the Company must be truthful, complete, transparent and understandable, in order to allow Recipients to make informed decisions regarding the relationships to be maintained with the Company.

2.11. Workplace safety and hygiene

The Company – in compliance with the law provisions in force from time to time, notably including, Legislative Decree No. 81 of 2008 (Consolidated Act of Public Safety Laws) as amended and supplemented, and any other regulatory provision on this subject – ensures that the Company's employees and collaborators will carry out their activities in suitable work environments safeguarding their health, safety and physical and moral integrity, in compliance with the applicable laws and regulations. For this reason, the Company promotes responsible and safe behaviour and adopts all the safety measures required by the technological progress to guarantee a safe and healthy work environment, with the specific aim of preventing and avoiding culpable homicide crimes and serious or very serious personal injury through negligence committed in breach of the accident prevention regulations and the regulations on the protection of hygiene and health at work. The Company shall therefore fulfill all the legal obligations provided for by Legislative Decree 81/2008, Article 30 (Consolidated Act of Public Safety Laws), as well as the obligations concerning the dissemination and consolidation of safety culture to protect the health of workers in the workplace, by developing risk awareness and promoting responsible behaviour by all employees and/or collaborators involved in various capacities.

In particular, the fundamental principles and criteria on the basis of which decisions on health and safety are taken are the following:

- avoiding risks by fighting them at source;

- assessing the risks that cannot be avoided;
- complying with the ergonomic and health principles in workplaces and in the organization of work, in particular as regards the design of workplaces and the choice of work equipment, work and production methods in order to mitigate monotonous work and repetitive work by reducing their effects on the workers' health;
- taking into account the degree of evolution of the technique;
- replacing what is dangerous with what is not dangerous or less dangerous;
- planning any measures deemed appropriate to guarantee the improvement of safety levels over time, also through the adoption of codes of conduct and good practices;
- envisaging prevention, aiming at a coherent complex that integrates work organization, working conditions, social relationships and the influence of factors in the work environment in the same technique;
- giving priority to collective protective measures over individual protective measures;
- giving proper instructions to the workers.

The Company, in the course of work and in the workplace, prohibits employees from working under the influence of alcoholic substances, narcotic substances or the like, or from consuming or transferring narcotic substances.

Furthermore, the Company provides for the preparation of specific training initiatives for all employees, in order to impart proper instructions and knowledge in the field of safety and hygiene in the workplace. Toscana Aeroporti undertakes to verify, through its own structures and organizations, the application of the safety measures envisaged, establishes health and safety objectives and goals and prepares systems for monitoring, reporting and periodic review.

2.12. Environment

The Company acknowledges the environment as a primary value to be safeguarded and is aware of the impact of the Company's activities on the economic/social development and the quality of life in the territory concerned and, therefore, undertakes to manage them in compliance with the current environmental regulations.

In order to strengthen the duty of environmental protection, Toscana Aeroporti has stressed the obligation to strictly comply with the provisions of the law, as well as with any other environmental protection and hygiene directives and the corporate procedures.

2.13. Relationships with political parties, trade unions and associations

The Company maintains consistent relationships with the Trade Union Organizations, the Union Officials or the Unitary Trade Union Representation, the Workers' Health and Safety Representatives and the Consumer Associations, under the principles of correctness and transparency, within the framework of legislative provisions and the provisions contained in the National Collective Labour Agreement.

The Company does not make any contributions, directly or indirectly, to political parties, movements, committees and political and trade-union organizations, nor to their representatives or candidates, save for duly documented contributions to be made as a result of specific regulations.

The Recipients of this Code cannot carry out political activities in the Company's headquarters or use the Company's assets or equipment for this purpose. They must also specify that any political opinions expressed by them to third parties are strictly personal and therefore do not represent the Company's position.

2.14. Due diligence and good faith

All employees and collaborator must act loyally and in good faith, respecting the contractual obligations and ensuring the provision of the required services. They must also be aware of and comply with the contents of this Code of Ethics, basing their conduct on respect, cooperation and mutual collaboration.

2.15. Documentation of the activities

The Company ensures the implementation of specific internal procedural rules aimed at preventing prejudicial events resulting in potential negative impacts on the company situation. The specific internal procedural rules must be adopted by all those who – in any capacity – are involved in the operating process – on the terms and in the manner expressly established and described by the competent functions of the Company.

Therefore, all the Company's activities, actions, transactions and operations must be carried out in compliance:

- with the current regulations, the utmost management correctness, the completeness and transparency of the information and its formal and material legitimacy, as well as with the obligations relating to the traceability and accountability thereof;
- with the instructions, procedures and notices given within the limits of the powers received and the budgets approved by the Board of Directors, in such a way that these are legitimate, consistent and congruous.

Each operation must therefore be supported by adequate, clear and complete documentation to be kept in the records, so as to allow – at all times – control over the reasons, the characteristics of the operation and the exact identification of the individuals who, in the various phases, have authorized, carried out, recorded and verified it.

Any Recipients who become aware of any omissions, alterations or falsifications of the accounting records or any related support documents must promptly inform their immediate supervisors or the persons in charge of the relevant corporate department and the Company's Supervisory Body.

2.16. Use of IT or telematic systems

The use of the IT and telematic tools and services assigned by the Company must be in full compliance with the regulations in force on this matter, with the existing internal procedures and with any procedures approved and issued at a later stage.

In any case, every employee, member of corporate bodies or collaborator is prohibited from accessing the IT or telematic systems of others without authorization or in breach of the law, as well as from violating the related access limits. These obligations must also be complied with in relation to any restrictions on access to the Company's IT system, where such access is permitted to certain individuals only.

Except as provided for by any civil and criminal laws, the use of network connections for purposes other than those related to the employment relationship or to send offensive messages or any messages that may damage the Company's reputation constitutes misuse of the Company's assets and resources.

All employees must also use their best efforts in order to prevent any possible crimes through the use of IT tools.

2.17. Relationships between the control bodies and the Code of Ethics

The body in charge of supervising the implementation and compliance with this Code of Ethics and of reporting on the possible need for its updates is the Supervisory Body, which, to this end, may also act using the other control functions operating within the Toscana Aeroporti system.

2.18. Fight against organized crime

The Company strongly condemns and – as part of its business operations – contrasts any type of organized crime, including mafia, with all the tools available to the Company.

To this end, special attention must be paid by Recipients if they happen to operate with counterparties based in geographic areas historically affected by organized crime, in order to prevent the risk of criminal infiltration.

Recipients must therefore verify the moral integrity and reliability requirements with reference to both staff and business relations, such as any counterparties, suppliers, consultants and contractual partners, as well as the legitimacy of the activities carried out by the same.

2.19. Anti-money laundering

The Company undertakes to comply with all national and international anti-money laundering regulations and provisions.

In this respect, it is forbidden to:

- receive or accept, in any way and under any circumstances, the promise of cash payments;
- risk of being involved in events relating to the laundering of money from illegal or criminal activities.

3. DIGNITY AT WORK

3.1. Preamble

Sexual harassment, mobbing, including in the form of bossing, and any other forms of discrimination are inadmissible. These, in fact, undermine the dignity of those who undergo such behaviours, thus compromising their health, trust, mood, motivation to work and also negatively affecting the work performance, the organizational climate and the reputation of the Company.

The Company ensures the adoption of diversified, timely and impartial measures aimed at guaranteeing the interruption of the harassing conduct against any employee who has suffered sexual harassment or is exposed to unwanted or discriminatory behaviours.

Anyone who reports cases of harassment has the right to confidentiality and not to undergo direct or indirect retaliation.

Toscana Aeroporti adheres to the Framework Agreement of the European Social Partners of April 26th, 2007 on harassment and violence in the workplace. All employees and all those who work within the Company have a specific role in the common commitment to create a working climate in which harassment and violence are considered unacceptable.

3.2. Duty of collaboration

All employees must contribute to ensuring a working environment in which people's dignity is respected. Witnesses who do not intervene to protect a victim of sexual and moral harassment can be considered jointly liable.

The heads of the departments and offices have a duty to encourage the prevention of sexual and moral harassment in the study and work areas that they supervise. Those responsible must also support any person who wants to react to sexual or moral harassment.

3.3. Sexual harassment: some definitions and types

Sexual harassment means any unwanted act or behaviour – be it physical or verbal – with a sexual connotation, causing offense to the dignity and freedom of the person who undergoes it, or likely to create retaliation or an atmosphere of intimidation towards that person, including unwelcome physical, verbal and non-verbal abuse (EEC recommendation of 11/27/1991).

Sexual harassment normally includes: lewd remarks; implicit or explicit unwelcome sexual advances; staring; winks; pornographic photos or any other similar material exposed in the workplace; written messages or provocative or sexually suggestive objects; unwanted intentional physical contacts; explicit or implicit promises of career advancement or facilitation and privileges in the workplace in exchange for sexual services; intimidation, threats and blackmail suffered for rejecting behaviours aimed at sexual intercourse.

3.4. Mobbing: some definitions

Mobbing is any form of moral or psychological violence in the workplace perpetrated by the employer or by other employees against a worker. It is characterized by a series of acts, attitudes or behaviours, different and repeated over time in a systematic and habitual way, having bullying, disparaging and vexatious connotations such as to lead to the degradation of the working conditions and susceptible of compromising the health, the professionalism or the dignity of the worker in the work environment or even excluding the worker from the reference working context.

The mobbing behaviour exists when it has the following characteristics: it is repeated and protracted over time; it is systematic; it is aimed at harming the victim.

There are various forms of psychological persecution that can indicate a mobbing behaviour, including but not limited to: slandering or defaming an individual or the family thereof; deliberately denying job-related information or providing incorrect, incomplete, insufficient information; deliberately sabotaging or preventing the execution of the work; expressly isolating or boycotting the worker; making threats, intimidating or demeaning the person; checking the worker behind his/her back and with the intention of damaging him/her; make an unmotivated move from the workplace or from his/her duties. The term "bossing" precisely identifies a specific form of mobbing that occurs when the perpetrator is not a peer but the boss, or the company organization as a whole that puts in place a series of behaviours aimed at preventing the employee from continuing his/her work in a dignified way.

The mobbing attitudes are characterized by lack of respect for the dignity of the individual and detrimental to the general principles on which a correct, respectful and non-discriminatory interpersonal relationship is based. These are attitudes that negatively affect both individuals and working groups and therefore the "atmosphere" of the workplace.

Mobbing is characterized, therefore, by the purpose of eliminating one or more unwanted persons according to a calculating corporate strategy aimed at their reduction and rationalization, carried out from above by the managerial staff.

3.5. Declarations of principle

- Any act or behaviour that constitutes sexual, moral and psychological harassment according to the above definitions is inadmissible;
- the right for female and male workers to be treated with dignity and to be protected in their own personal freedom is enshrined;

3.6. Confidentiality

7.4. Market Abuse

Toscana Aeroporti has adopted a special Regulation for the management of inside information aimed at preventing such processing from taking place in an untimely, incomplete or inadequate manner or otherwise from causing information asymmetries among the public.

The Directors, the Statutory Auditors, the managers and the employees of Toscana Aeroporti and of the Companies of the Group and all those who perform their work and/or professional activity in favour of Toscana Aeroporti and of the Companies of the Group by virtue of a relationship other than that of subordinate work, are required to never disclose or disseminate, in Italy or abroad, any confidential information and data they have become aware of about the Company or the Group.

This information, which could become inside information, is treated by taking all necessary precautions to ensure that its dissemination within the Company takes place without prejudice to the confidential nature of such information, until it is disclosed to the market in the manner prescribed by the Regulation.

For the purposes indicated above, the Company has provided a register of the people who – due to their work or professional activity or because of their tasks – have access to inside information or information that could become inside information.

7.5. Copyright protection

The Company undertakes to operate in compliance with the law and with the internal regulations and rules on copyright protection, and to safeguard the instruments or distinctive signs of third parties.

In particular:

- the acquisition and use of IT tools without a license is not allowed;
- it is forbidden to acquire or favour the circulation of goods for which originality and full compliance with the protection of industrial property have not been proven.

8. COMMUNICATION, CREATION AND ENFORCEMENT OF THE CODE OF ETHICS, MONITORING AND CONTROL

8.1. Knowledge and application

This Code of Ethics, as an integral part of the Organization Model pursuant to Legislative Decree 231/01, is brought to the attention of all Recipients by the top management through:

- the delivery of a copy of this Code of Ethics to all Personnel and the related written receipt proving delivery;
- the publication of this Code of Ethics on the company website of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A.

All those who collaborate with the Company – without any distinctions or exceptions, in Italy or abroad – are committed to enforcing the principles of this Code. In no way can acting for the benefit of the Company justify any conducts that conflict with the law and with these principles.

In particular, all Recipients must operate in such a way as to ensure that these rules are properly applied.

Formal acceptance of the provisions of this Code of Ethics may be requested – by the relevant corporate Operating Units – from employees, collaborators or otherwise from Recipients.

8.2. Monitoring and control

The enforcement of and compliance with the Code of Ethics must be consistently monitored by the Supervisory Body, which, in particular, must:

- verify the Recipients' compliance with the Code of Ethics;
- make their own comments regarding any ethical issues that may arise in the context of corporate decisions;
- provide any interested parties that may so request with clarifications and explanations regarding the interpretation of the Code or the legitimacy of their own or others' behaviours;
- encourage and coordinate the updating of the Code of Ethics, also through their own proposals for adaptation or updating;
- promote and monitor the development of communication and training activities on the Model and, in particular, on the Code of Ethics, as determined by the Company.

8.3. Reporting of violations and protection for the reporting parties

As already set forth in the Organization Model adopted by the Company, anyone who becomes aware of any crimes or irregularities while carrying out their work activities, as well as of any violations of the principles of this Code, must promptly report them to the Supervisory Body. Reports can be made through the appropriate IT system, implemented by the Company at the group level, which allows for anonymous reporting, with no IP identification or tracking allowed against the reporting device.

The reporting device can access the IT platform through the institutional website of Toscana Aeroporti, by using the following link: <https://toscana-aeroporti.segnalazioni.net/>.

In the event that the report is addressed directly to the Internal Member of the Supervisory Body (SB), the latter will be excluded from the management of the report. Only the external members of the SB, due to their independent role, shall be allowed to ascertain the facts and manage the start of any investigations.

The Company has adopted the internal procedure (PR 76 "Integrity line and transmission of reports") which describes the process for implementing the Integrity help line and making such reports.

The Company strictly prohibits any retaliatory, discriminatory or penalizing behavior against anyone who – in good faith – reports a violation of the Code of Ethics, denounces incorrect conduct or discloses information relating to the commission of crimes or corrupt behaviour.

In no case can making a report constitute grounds for threats, harassment, discrimination, professional deskilling or refusal to recognize any benefits, suspension or termination of the employment relationship.

Anyone who thinks they are subjected to retaliation or is aware of any retaliation against others for making a report must immediately contact the Supervisory Body.

8.4. Code changes and updates

Any changes and/or additions to this Code must be made according to the same procedures as those for its initial approval.

8.5. Sanctions

Compliance with the rules of this Code must be considered an essential part of the contractual obligations with the Company. The Code, therefore, must be complied with by all the managers and employees of Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A.

Failure to comply with the rules contained in this Code of Ethics may result in the penalties provided for by Law 300/1970 as amended and supplemented, as well as by any applicable collective labour agreements.

Any conduct put in place by the Collaborators in contrast with the rules that make up this Code could lead – as is provided for by special contractual clauses included in the assignment letters, in the agreements and the contracts – to the immediate termination of the contractual relationship, without prejudice to any claim for compensation by Toscana Aeroporti S.p.A.
